CONSCIENCE

PERSONIFIED,

AN

ALLEGORICAL SKETCH:

ANDTHE

PET LAMB,

AN

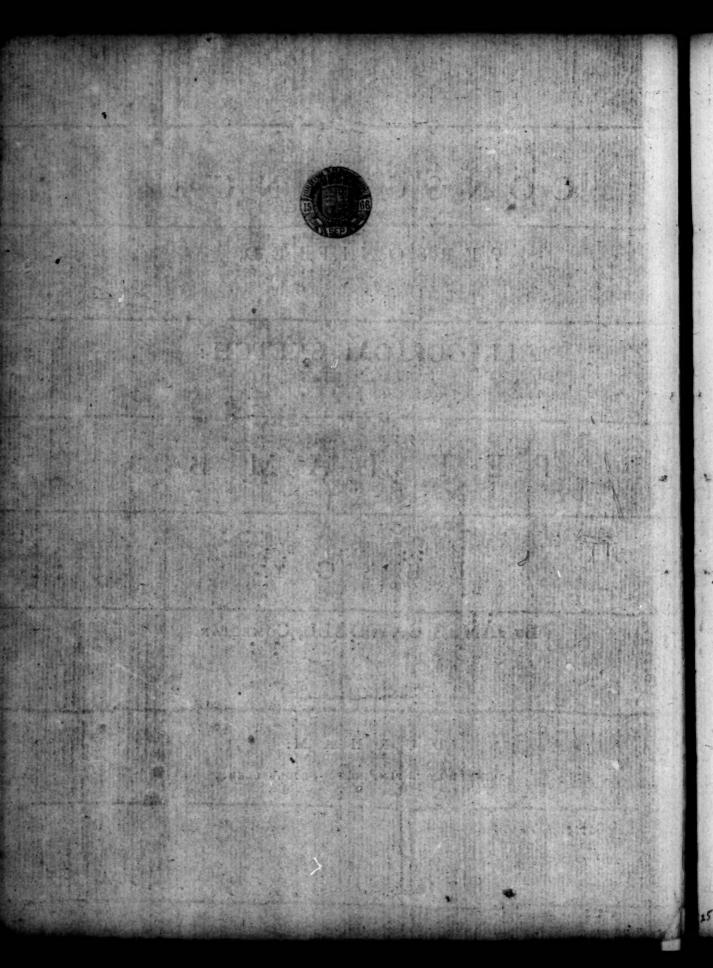

At 1 and Sugar to a family as

ELEGY.

By JAMES CAWDELL, COMEDIAN.

DURHAM:

PRINTED BY L. PENNINGTON, BOOKSELLER.

PERSONIFIED. And lewed delayed by thocks the model err: 1 10 ber it rrom.

Are held by Beiogs, wicked, week, and vain;

Where Laftern pland ters fain the plains with gord 12 & A Heathen Sage, with light divine, unbleff'd, parlatus bul Thus once, we're told, a Christian Youth address'd;

h bles to look to think an " Pray, what is Conscience, theme of Christian fong, That awful arbitress of Right and Wrong? Is it an Angel or a Devil, pray, the some said store of the That rules your minds with fuch despotic sway?"

Where frauds at a practiff, purple to "Both" cried the Youth, " and though it strange may feem, She boafts by turns each opposite extreme: Chearful as day or gloomy as the night, A pleasing, frightful, heterogen'ous Spright! This hour a Goddess, rapt'rous to behold, The next a Dæmon, of terrific mould! vinere bankrupus form thole objects by theil diffed diffed obods much

With different power she rules the felf same breast, And either wakes the soul, or lulls to rest.

" As passions vary in each human creature, So varies she in Action, Shape, and Feature.

" Where revel rioters their standards rear, And lewd debauch'ry shocks the modest ear: Where wanton orgies, dang'rous as profane, Are held by Beings, wicked, weak, and vain: Where Eastern plund'rers stain the plains with gore, And butcher millions to increase their store: Where murder's meditated, thefts are plann'd, As thirst of blood or gold directs each hand; Where artless maids, pride of the human race, Are doom'd by favage luft to foul diffrace; wid is lutwa tad ! Where more than monsters, men resolve to tear the mis that That treasure from their friend he holds most dear; Where frauds are practif'd, perjur'd vows are made, Where every deep feducing art's difplay'd; Till the loft wife and injur'd hufband fever, and the sale and And find their peace of mind destroy'd for ever! a lines at Where brutal dealers in the fable race, Chain, fcourge, or murder, void of human grace; " and and Where bankrupts vile, erect their brazen creft, And spurn those objects by their frauds distress'd

Where

Where loft to feeling, callous to remorfe, which discuss the Each fon of vice purfues his guilty course;
And hurried on by fools or knaves applause, and produce the fearless tramples on religion's laws.

He fearless tramples on religion's laws.

But short's the joy that fills his conscious breast, because it has the triumph ceases at the hour of rest

She dans at once anony is willing occord,

As if to feel and quinch the line of what

And forc'd enjoyments drown his thoughts no more;
Soon as the blushing sun his head declines,
And on a guilty world no longer shines;
Soon as the fable night her curtain draws,
And wearied nature gives to toil a pause.

Then comes the awful period of his life,
And nature shudders at the mental strife;
Stung by reflection, scorning to complain,
He seeks that rest so often sought in vain.

Soon as his eye-lids, enervated, close,
And all his hopes are center'd in repose;
Then Conscience wakes, and quits her lurking cell,
The tale of horror and of woe to tell.

"See from the pillow crawls the shapeless Spright,

Her eye-balls blazing with terrific light!

Her grinding jaws in horrid discord grate—

Her teeth envenom'd speak the culprit's fate!

Her tongue with double barb, of spiral mould,
Piercing its object, never quits its hold;
A mortal drug beneath its root is llaid, for you no believed bar.
And poison follows where the wound is made.
In dread succession moves each snaky fold,
Her crest erecting, horrid to behold;
She darts at once upon the victim's breast,
Assails his peace, and storms the gates of rest the action of the Assails and the same of the same of

"Now view him trembling, struggling for relief, and an account of the face distorted, speaks his inward grief:

His pallid muscles, quiv'ring limbs declare, in solidated and account of horror and despair!

Disjointed slumbers but increase his pain, and account of the And frightful dreams distract his tortur'd brain;

Now in his heart the sanguinary tides,

Quick ebb and flow, as stern resection guides.

The dire approach of horror and despair!

And frightful dreams distract his tortur'd brain;

Whilst ebb and flow, as stern resection guides.

The dire approach of horror and despair!

Whilst speaks his inward grief:

Whilst speaks his inward grief.

Whi

"At last he wakes, his mental pains increase, allindays cold And worlds he'd give to buy a moment's peace; grafining toll but a last him from the But

" See kom the pillow cram's the happelell Spright

OB

And produced executives, what proceeds to addite

But 'twill not be, his pray'rs are yet in vain-For injur'd Conscience will her right maintain. Therefore to Penitence he first must fly, And next to Retribution must apply; Then meek eyed Mercy may unlock her store, And Conscience fmiling, chide his foul no more. Such is the pow'r of Conscience," faid the youth, "And fuch her empire o'er the foes of truth."

- " Dreadful dominion!" cried the hoary Sire " If fuch her rule, if fuch her vengeful ire; Goblins like this, may christian sons disgrace, But fuch an Imp ne'er curs'd the heathen race.
- " The form you've given her, whether false or true, Still shocks my mind and glares me full in view; Then change her shape, new mould the frightful Elf, Your pencil cleanse, and paint her other self."

Affenting straight, the modest youth began, To draw her portrait on a diff'rent plan, The outline sketch'd, proportion'd just and true, His pallet glows with tints of beauteous hue; His eager pencil moves with grace and art, The hand directed by th' unerring heart; to doub those laws that reil inne men r

OL

Therefore to Penitence llegifich muligy.

" Dyeadlal dominion !!

" The locus government of aff "

All presidents at problem and the part.

A task so pleasing charms the artist's soul, 'Till fair perfection crowns the finish'd whole.

"Where lib'ral Prelates, Heaven's just agents here,
With splendid virtues, grace their mitred sphere;
Where under them each moral virtue thrives,
Their snowy lawn, fair emblem of their lives;
Where active goodness guides each deed and thought,
And practice executes, what precept taught.

"Where faithful Husbands seek domestic peace,
And scorning change, behold their joys increase;
Where true to marriage, constant to their vow,
Eternal sun-shine smiles upon their brow:

"Where gentle Fathers view their prattling race,
And smile with rapture on each growing grace;
Where moral strains attune each tender string,
And round their sire the list ning infants cling:
Where grown to manhood, punctual to their trust,
They ape their parent, and like him are just:

"Where manly Pleaders, warm in pity's cause,
Explode the policy of slavish laws;
Where zealous eloquence exalts her voice
To crush those laws that millions may rejoice;

Her refeate cheeks in bloom culidful shift!

And prove the rights of Freedom to mankind; - honor bank

"Where gen'ral good the feeling man inspires, 1919 and To yield that balm the wounded heart requires; Where fweet Benevolence, with open hands, and budde " Makes no distinction when distress demands and hand Where kind relief's no fooner alk'd than felt. Where Howard travell'd, and where Allant dwelt; Where beings great as thefe command our praise And each th' extent of human worth displays, There Conscience shines, in all her bright array The Night's best friend, and faithful guide by Day; When loth to leave fuch scenes of sweet delight, Reluctant day fubmits to gloomy night; When ceaseless toils, the man of worth bear down, And foft repose ascends the torpid throne: When conqu'ring Sleep assumes the right to reign, And o'er his fenses throws the filken chain; Then comes fair Conscience, at Reflection's nody In form a Cherub, in effect a God! Perch'd on his pillow waves her snowy wings, Smiles on his face and to his bosom clings, Charms his rapt foul, and like an Angel fings.

tidguede nommou made exomet h'drolde ne Enchanting

. The Philanthropist.

† Mifs Allan late of Grainge.

To what the bound of several his or

And toft regule alcounts the cornic the

Where holges greet as the command our praise

Enchanting fweetness decks her heav'nly brow,

And round her form seraphic beauties glow,

Her roseate cheeks in bloom celestial shine,

And every feature boasts a charm divine.

"Shou'd dire disease attack his guiltless heart, And stern affliction hurl th' envenom'd dart,
Her balmy breath, with pow'rful essence crown'd,
The poison kills, and heals the bleeding wound;

"Shou'd disappointment vex his virtuous breast,
Or sad missortune rob his mind of rest,
She ever watchful shields him from despair,
And brings him fortitude, distress to bear.—
To prove the following truth, each nerve exerts
That,—Fortune's frowns are not his own deserts.

"When fly Temptation, with alluring fmile,
Tries ev'ry art his virtue to beguile,
He stands unmov'd, the guilty bliss disdains,
His guardian, Conscience, o'er delusion reigns;
'Tis she who wards the wily archer's aim,
Protects his honour and preserves his fame.

"" Or when absorb'd in more than common thought, His rebel reason to revolt is brought; When wild ideas agitate his brain,
And fill his mind with undeferved pain:
Then fee how fweetly she her pow'r employs,
To banish grief and court returning joys;
See round his neck her snowy arm she twines,
And o'er his russled breast her head declines;
Her gentle hand glides o'er his furrow'd brow,
And smooths those symptoms of the bosom's woe,
Soft peace she whispers to his list'ning ear,
Repels each pang, and stems each starting tear.
In accents sweet applauds his matchless worth,
Extolls that heart which gave such merit birth;
Then bids him rouse, his resolution arm!
Renounce despair, and spurn the false alarm!

"Tis done, he lives, the pow'rful word is given, The voice of Conscience is the voice of Heaven."

Control of the Street Street Street Street

College of the news here is the historial base.

In all their salphane flow sky transp

The results path, the break price is your

When wild ideas agree his brain.

And, sit his mind, with gaidefored tuin:

The banift grief and court restaining joys.)

She would his neck her facewy and the owines.

She would his neck her facewy and the owines.

And wer his saliked broad her bead declines:

Her gentle had go des a his farmow'd treas.

And smooth those fungents of the bottom's woe.

And peace the whithers to the pattern their section.

Expels yeth pans, and three each farmow tear.

Excepts faces appareds his matchless worsh.

Excepts there appareds his matchless worsh.

Excepts that hear which gave fach ment birth.

The word of Consequent of the word of Managers is the the title in this opening to the contract of the contra

THE

P E b T as and Lord A aban Milliam and W

West for echiefs graduated he don't no more were

The with water further ways to also yell also yell

Think when as eye, recovery from the collection and all the

Then can't destroy both that have of kindnets tail!

Through the drear winger, the hearth by the care, I man and

WHERE is the heart, by custom steel'd so hard,

That can you melting sight unmov'd behold?

Where is the breast so lost to soft regard

That can the sigh of sympathy withold?

Poor trembling victim, hear his plaintive cries;
See how he shudders at the threat'ning knife;
With pit'ous bleats, he ev'ry effort tries,
To move his butcher, and to save his life.

But all in vain, the glutton must be fed,

The greedy epicure must be obey'd;

Volupt'ous dainties must the table spread,

The word is past, the fatal price is paid.

Hold! murd'rer hold!—a moment stay thy hand,

Look on his snowy sleece, his harmless face;

Emblems

Emblems of innocence confest d they stand, Then spare his life, and save thy own disgrace.

Think but a little on his pleasing pranks,

When chilling winds first drove him to thy door;
In playful bounds he gave thee ample thanks,

'Twas speechless gratitude, he cou'd no more.

Through the drear winter, shelter'd by thy care,

Fed by thy kindness from thy humble board;

Preserv'd from hunger, and th' inclement air,

By thee befriended, and by thee restor'd.

Think with what faith he gave th' alarm of day,

When op'ning morn her fable curtains drew; mildered nod?

As on thy cloaths befide thy bed he lay, and and and and and any did did.

That can the ligh of fympathy withold?

To move his burcht, and to lave his lift.

The word is path, the fatal price is paid.

Think when at eve, returning from thy toils,
You fought that rest which worldly cares demand; and the set Laden from him, perhaps, with verdant spoils, and bear and Think how he leapt to kiss thy fost ring hand.

Then canst thou now that hand of kindness raise,

And 'gainst his life that weapon directul wield? The bases ! blott

No.

Emblems

No, drop the steel, deserve compassion's praise, And let thy purpose, to thy pity yield.

But 'twill not be, his quiv'ring limbs are bound,
His writhing body's hurl'd upon the bier;
His plaintive bleats are unavailing found—
Compassion slies, and not a friend is near.

When near his throat the knife approach'd for death,
He heav'd a figh upon it's polish'd blade,
Which blushing wept at mif'ry's parting breath,
And from the favage grasp it shrunk dismay'd.

But now refolv'd, again the steel's applied;
The struggling victim hangs his bleeding head,
Whilst down his cheeks the tears of anguish glide,
To wash the murd'ring hand, by which he bled!

Thus lost to feeling, pit'ous cries, and tears,

The harden'd wretch compleats his fanguine plan;

And proves that tygers, wolves, and hungry bears,

Are not more favage than that tyrant Man.

No, drop the fleel, deferve compaffion's praffe,

And let thy purpole, to thy pity yield.

But 'twill not be, his quit'ring imbs are board,
His writhing body's hiel'd agon the bier;
His plaintive blears are unavailing found—
Compafion ties, and not a friend is near.

When near his threat the knife approach d for death,

He heav'd a figh upon it will blade,
Which bluthing wept at the string breath,
And from the favoge g

But now refult'd, again the Reel's applied;
The flrugging victin haves his bleeding head;
Whilk down his cheeks the tears of anguild glide,
To walk the raund ring hand, by which he bled!

Thus lost to feeling, the ous cries, and rears,

The harden'd wretch compleats his fanguine plan;

And proves that typere, wolves, and honery bears,

Are not more lavege than that typant hims.